WHAT IS REIMAGINING SERVICE?

Building on the work of the champions of effective volunteer engagement, Reimagining Service is a national coalition of multi-sector representatives from nonprofit organizations, government, education, faith-based, funders and corporations. We seek to increase the impact of volunteers through:

PRACTICE: Inspiring organizations to leverage volunteers more fully and strategically, and engage volunteers as part of their core operations.

RESEARCH: Supporting and disseminating research aimed at highlighting effective volunteer engagement practices and policies and their impact on the core mission of the organization.

FUNDING: Engaging funders in recognizing that volunteerism and civic engagement are cost effective strategies that help community organizations accomplish their missions, and therefore merit their financial support.

REIMAGINING SERVICE PRINCIPLES

The Reimagining Service coalition has established four principles to guide its work:

PRINCIPLE 1: The volunteer ecosystem is more effective when all sectors participate in its evolution. Volunteerism doesn’t exist in a single sector and the responsibility of successful volunteer engagement resides beyond nonprofits alone. We are interdependent when it comes to this work and together we can increase the impact of volunteerism by working to improve the system across all sectors (i.e., nonprofit, private, faith-based, education, government).

PRINCIPLE 2: Make volunteering a core strategic function, not an add-on. Volunteers fundamentally increase our ability to achieve our objectives and advance the social mission of our organizations. Engaging volunteers effectively can help an organization serve more people in the community as well as change the core economics of an organization, which can allow it to scale more quickly in a cost effective way.

PRINCIPLE 3: Focus volunteer engagement on true community needs. Rather than responding to the supply of volunteers, identify key priorities in the community then purposefully seek out volunteers with the core skills needed to address those priorities. We should also strive to communicate the value of volunteers to the community by measuring their impact, not just the hours they serve.

PRINCIPLE 4: In order to get a return, you have to invest. Organizations that make volunteers central to their work and manage them well are able to generate as much as three to six times the community value from volunteers as the cost to manage them. This is a smart way to maximize impact, but it requires up-front and ongoing financial investment in volunteer engagement in all sectors. And we need funders, who believe that funding volunteer engagement helps organizations achieve their broader social missions, to raise their voices so that the funding community can learn from their stories.
WHAT IS A SERVICE ENTERPRISE?

Reimagining Service believes that one way to increase the impact of volunteering is to encourage the creation of more service enterprises.

It is an organization that fundamentally leverages volunteers and their skills to successfully deliver on the social mission of the organization.

Analysis by the TCC Group used the Core Capacity Assessment Tool (CCAT) to study nonprofit service enterprises. These organizations represented less than 15 percent of all nonprofits in the CCAT dataset, and they consistently outperformed their peers on all measures of organizational effectiveness.

Visit Reimagining Service.org to download the research summary.

NONPROFIT SERVICE ENTERPRISE CHARACTERISTICS

Research identified these eight characteristic as consistent and critical practices for nonprofit service enterprises:

- External partnerships to extend reach into the community
- Demonstrated executive support for volunteer engagement
- Resources allocated to priority initiatives
- Ongoing funding outreach to support volunteer engagement
- Effective training for paid staff and volunteers
- Tracking system used to manage volunteer resources
- Technology leveraged to enhance engagement of volunteers
- Clear on-boarding and expectation-setting with volunteers

NONPROFIT SERVICE ENTERPRISE

Based on research conducted by Deloitte.

CHECKLIST FOR NONPROFIT SERVICE ENTERPRISES

- Respond to volunteer inquiries quickly.
- Screen potential volunteers for skills and genuine interest.
- Define and communicate roles and expectations clearly.
- Implement standard training for all volunteers.
- Match skills and interests of the volunteer with opportunities.
- Establish the value of the volunteer - making sure they have an important role in the organization that impacts the whole volunteer process.

- Provide volunteers with opportunity to provide/receive feedback.
- Implement a good tracking tool to measure value.
- Provide support and assistance to volunteers at all times.
- Provide an opportunity for volunteers to connect with other volunteers and nonprofit leadership.
- Develop an ongoing recognition program.
- Develop strong relationships with partner programs.